

CATHOLIC WOMEN'S LEADERSHIP COURSES – SUMMER 2017

June 19 – 23, 2017

1. Toward A Catholic Understanding of Woman (2 Credits)

Monica Miller (M.A., Ph.D.)

An exploration of the anthropology of the female person in light of her innate authority demonstrated through her influence, power, and effect as portrayed in Sacred Scripture, Church teaching, the Blessed Virgin Mary, and the dynamic of covenant.

2. Catholic Social Doctrine and Today's Catholic Woman Leader (2 Credits)

Fr. Mitch Pacwa, S.J. (M.Div., M.A., Ph.D.)

This course will investigate the underlying principles of Catholic Social Teaching, their basis in Scripture and Tradition in concert with the Natural Law. A particular emphasis will be given to Rerum Novarum and Centesimus Annus. The course will also explore Catholic Social Teaching in light of 21st Century social challenges and ideologies, and their impact on the today's Catholic woman leader.

June 26 – 30, 2017

3. Learning from the Past: Words and Wisdom of Holy Women through the Ages (2 Credits)

Fr. Dcn. Joshua Genig (M.Div., Ph.D.)

This course will explore the words and wisdom of some of the holy women down through the ages, both before the time of Christ and after. We will look at some of the more famous saints and holy women, but also those of whom we are less aware. The goal will be to see in them, their stories, and the ways in which they lived as leaders in their own day and their own way a place for our own story of faith as, through their holy prayers, we seek to grow in Christ and be formed into the active leaders He wishes us to be.
